Without question the key to a well-designed interior lies in selecting the quality of the materials and products used. If well-chosen, the materials not only create a sense of personality but also add to the comfort and functionality of the space. Recessed lighting, for example, can create a warm and inviting atmosphere, while natural wood or stone elements can bring a touch of nature indoors. The choice of materials and finishes can also have a significant impact on the overall aesthetic of the space.